

Helplessly Hoping -- The Amazon's Remix -- 5/18/11

Helplessly hoping,
I'll try not to hover nearby
awaiting your word.
Gasping at glimpses
of how much you struggle
I wish somehow we could fly far a-way until this passes by.

Wordlessly watching,
I wait for your phone call and wonder at the reasons you don't call.
Achingly anxious of all of your bad dreams.
I worry
Did I hear a goodbye or even a hello.

[chorus]
You are one person.
You are not alone.
You have friends who love you.
We will get you through together.

Listening and waiting for someone to cure you,
the doctors confuse you with their words.
No one is lying
but cancer is something that lingers silent as a ghost,
sometimes choking all our hope.

[chorus]
You are one person
You are not alone
You have friends who love you
We will get you through together.

